

The AXIOM Aesthetic

Weekly inspiration for the creative mind.

CREATIVES FUELING
DETROIT'S EVOLUTION

Detroit was among America's wealthiest cities until a sharp decline about 60 years ago. They have been experimenting with urban regeneration for decades. The Detroit art scene has a true grassroots flavor, from food to music to its cultural landscape. The Heidelberg Project is a four-block stretch that confronts the conditions of a city interrupted-by white flight, by bankruptcy, by mismanagement-but also insists that you acknowledge the spirit of a community unwilling to sit back and take it. The culinary history celebrates and supports community showcasing flavors from around the world. Fresh blood from across the globe has influenced the music scene, Black Bottom Jazz, Detroit Blues and Motown where where it all started but Hardcore punk, R&B, rock and roll, hip-hop, and techno have all found their place in the city.

Desiree Kelly
"Krykah"
Oil on Board

Scott Klinker
"Isometric Fracture"
Mixed Media

Michelle Tanguay
"Splash"
Oil on Canvas
72 x 44 inches

Tyanna J Buie
"A Series of Arrangements #1"
Screenprint Hand Cut Paper Monotype
50 x 65 inches

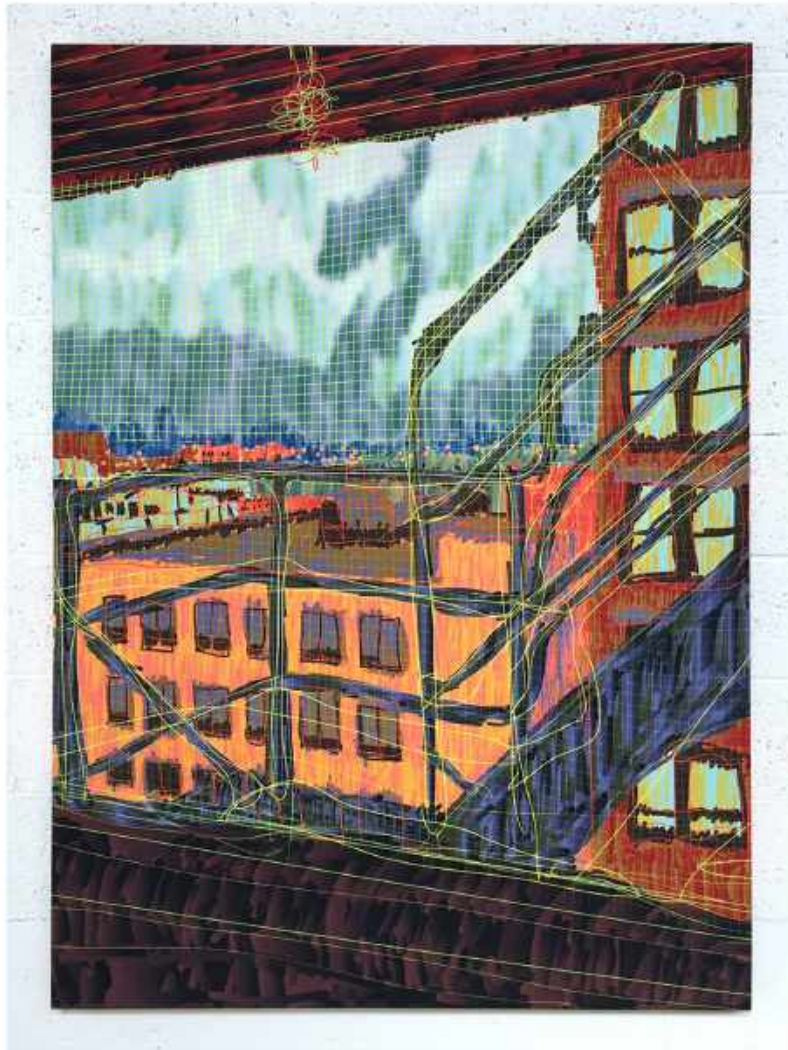

Matthew Zacharias
"Childhood, Boyhood, Sonic Youth (4-10)"
Mixed Media on Board
24 x 84 inches

Kate Silvio
"Slough"
Steel
26 x 24 x 5.5 inches

Matthew Zacharias
"Childhood, Boyhood, Sonic Youth (4-10)"
Mixed Media on Board
24 x 84 inches

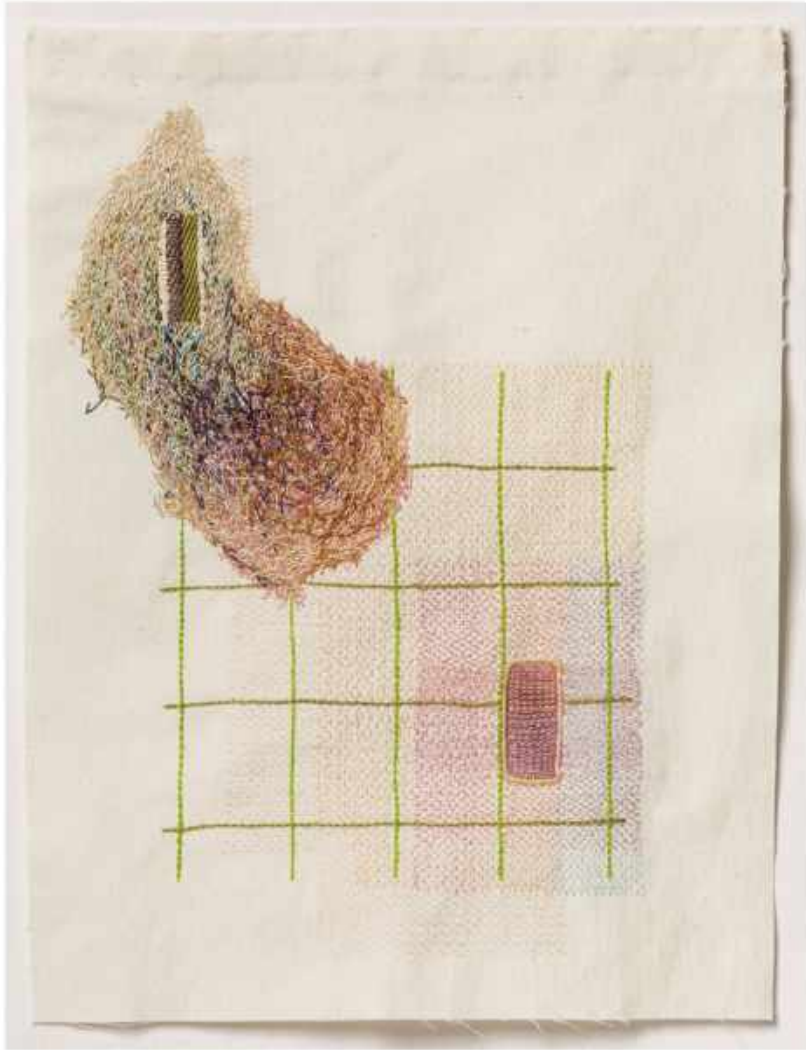

Frank Lepkowski
"Screen Window 1"
Dye Sublimation on Synthetic Suede
45 x 62 inches

Louise Jones
"Adaptation Nocturne"
Mural

Ani Garabedian
"Landscape"
Oil on Wood
36 x 36 inches

Mark Newport
"Mend 6"
Embroidery on Muslin
17 x 13 inches

Nick Jaskey
"Work Shirts"
Mixed Media on Wood
24 x 24 inches

Ellen Rutt
"The Invitation"
Mixed Media on Canvas
60 x 72 inches

Maritza Caneca
"Bottoms Up"
Photograph

Patrick Alston
"Trials & Tribulations Week 01, Day 02, 2020"
Acrylic, Oil, Oil Stick & Pastel on Paper
12 x 12 inches

Ian Swanson
"Co-Op"
Acrylic on Canvas
40 x 52 inches

